Each Smithsonian twist-top rollerball has the Smithsonian name engraved on the top ring and sun logo on the top disc. A serial number is engraved as well on the top ring and each pen is packaged in a matching commemorative tube.

The Corona pen has a deeply etched barrel reminiscent of the ornamental bronze-colored metal lattice that covers the outside of the National Museum of African American History and Culture building in Washington D.C.

The Discovery Shuttle embodies well the 30-year history of human space flight from 1981 to 2011 and is on display at the James S. McDonnell Space Hangar. This rollerball pen has been etched and printed with details from this accomplished orbiting vehicle finished with black accents.

Amelia Earhart set two of her many aviation records in this bright red Lockheed 5B Vega that is in the permanent collection of the National Air and Space Museum. The Vega pen has "rivets" acid-etched into the metal barrel with bright red lacquer finish and then top printed with the Vega's original golden pin stripes.

Gene Davis's Hot Beat is part of the Smithsonian American Art Museum's permanent collection. He was quoted saying, "it seemed to feel right, as we entered the sixties, to have color that leaped right off the wall ... It's almost as if I wanted to shout, rather than to whisper." You'll definitely be writing boldly with this Tornado printed in matching stripes to replicate this painting.

The National Postal Museum's Pen Pal Tornado has been covered in some of the most storied stamps the museum has in its collection. The "Inverted Jenny," Booker T. Washington, Black Harding and Benjamin Franklin replica stamps cover the barrel and have been coated in a thick gloss varnish.

National Museum of Natural History's Dino Fossil pen is acid-etched with several dinosaur bones so you can actually feel them. The barrel and trim are plated in antique copper to give it an earthy feel and then the dinosaurs are top printed to highlight the unearthed bones.

The Smithsonian name and logo are registered trademarks of the Smithsonian Institution.
